

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A tempered glass sheet having in its front view a peripheral region including the peripheries, and a central region (9) occupying inside the peripheral
5 region, wherein the average surface compressive stress in the central region (9) is larger than the average surface compressive stress in the peripheral region, is presented, whereby a tempered glass sheet having a thickness thinner than conventional ones can be provided.